"Forge thy tongue on an anvil of truth, and what flies up, though it be but a spark, shall have weight."

LYNDON B

perpetuating a President's name can be sensed from a recent story the Raymondville Chronicle copied from a Chicago area newspaper, and we are reprinting here:

"We get the impression that nearly every time the President goes down to Texas something new is named for him. There is Johnson City, of course, which is named for his grandfather, and the LBJ ranch. More recent additions, we've learned, include a Lyndon B. Johnson lake, a Lyndon B. Johnson state park, and a Lyndon B. Johnson street in nearby San Marcos. If this keeps up we'll soon be reading an account along these lines:

"THE PRESIDENT went directly from Lyndon field to Baines beach, where he boarded the Elbee Jay for a relaxing spin on Lyndon B. Johnson lake. After a picnic in Lynda bay, he asked an aide to telephone the LBJ ranch (JOhnson 1-1964), where he was to meet a delegation from the Johnson City 4-L clubs (Life, Liberty, Love, and Lyndon), and ask them to meet him, instead, at the entrance to the new Lyndon B. Johnson park.

"THE PRESIDENTIAL motorcade proceeded along Lady Bird turnpike (no billboards), thru Baines center and Nodnyl (know - it - all) junction, pausing only to view a new signboard reading 'Entering Johnson (formerly Blanco) County'.
In smaller letters it added: 'Motorists desiring Blanco (formerly Johnson) county will find it 200 miles to the north, near Fort Worth.'

"The party returned to the ranch by the way of the Lyndon B. Johnson dam (earlier plans to name it simply 'Lyndon B.' were dropped at the last minute) and the new Johnson High School, where students gave him a copy of their school paper, the Lyndon Bee. A road near the ranch has been given a well known German name in honor of the visit of Chancellor Erhardt, an aide explained, because the President didn't want everything in the county named for him. The name of the road is "Unter Den Lyndon."

Congratulations to the Hondo Garden Club. Their scrapbooks won two awards in recent District VII competitoin in Corpus Christi, and will now go to state. Their litterbug progress report scored 191/2 points out of a possible 20. The book scored 99½. On the report, judges noted that the HGC had "excellent newspaper coverage with many clubs and organizations lending a hand."

Time To Apply For Fish Stock

AUSTIN, Feb. 16 - Persons interested in obtaining black bass for stocking private waters are reminded by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department that April 1 is the deadline for receiving applications for these fish with delivery to authorized places in the spring. The deadline for catfish and other fish is August 1, with delivery in the fall. Applications received after ose dates are filed eration the next year. The Department advised prospective recipients: "Bass will not be delivered to ponds previously stocked unless the waters have dried up or have been chemically renovated and the out-of-balance fish population removed. Channel catfish may be requested, if needed, every three years because this species does not normally reproduce in small lakes. Recommendations for stocking by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists will be hon-

Here is additional advisory data:

"A properly stocked farm tank, fish pond or small lake will provide fishing over a number of years. There is no need to restock with fish every year. Such a practice is not only wasteful of hatchery-reared fish but results in an overcrowded condition and stunted, s m a 11 fish. Overstocked waters produce poor quality fish just as overstocked land produces poor quality cattle. "Small lakes and ponds should be stocked with a balanced ratio of forage fish and predators. The predators reared in State hatcheries are largemouth bass and channel catfish. The best forage fish produced in our hatcheries is the redear sunfish. This species also provides a good panfish in many parts of the State.

"In newly built or newly renovated waters, largemouth black bass, stocked at the rate of 200 fry or 100 fingerlings per surface acre, do extremely well and should produce a fishable population within a year.

"Crappie, or white perch, will not be stocked in ponds of less than ten (10) surface acres in size. This policy is part of an attempt to provide the best fishing possible to small pond and lake owners. Due to the inherent reproductive capacity of crappie, this species will quickly over - populate and become stunted in small bodies of water. Such a condition normally results in poor fishing for all species of fish.

Wolves Problem In Madison Co.

Joe Williams, who runs a grocery and hardware store at North Zulch, says that his customers are talking about the many wolves now roaming the country to the south, southwest and west of North Zulch.

Williams also runs cattle on his place near the old Willowhole school site. He lost two newborn calves to the wolves. during the recent severe cold spell. He found the cleaned carcasses and gnawed bones of the calves when he went to the pasture to put out hay and creepfeed and discovered two cows were without their calves.

He stated that others have reported losing calves, lambs and chickens. One woman saw a wolf catch one of her hens in the daytime. As many as six wolves have been seen in one pack and pairs are common. Counting up, Williams says he knows of eleven big wolves that have been killed by landowners and hunters in recent weeks, Wolf hunters with dogs, or those favoring the popular new sport of bringing wolves, bobcats and other varmints into shooting range by using calls or special phonograph records, could have many good hunts and would be welcome on most places in the community, Williams says. It would be necessary, of course, to get the landowner's permission to hunt, he pointed out.

Cattlemen may save time and money by feeding protein supplement twice a week during the winter rather than daily feeding. Research conducted by animal scientists of Texas A&M University indicate twice weekly feeding is as satisfactory as daily or thrice weekly feedings. This doesn't mean feeding less protein supplement - just feeding larger amounts less often. Up to 60 percent savings in time and travel were registered. The production of feed grains in the nation set a new record in 1965. Yields were 18 percent higher than in '64 and 11 per-$5,903,000 to the annual cost of cent above the previous record set in 1963. The record yields increased the supply for 1965-66 by 10 million tons, says John McHaney, Extension Economist. Sorghum grain production in Texas helped push the record for the nation to 655 million bushels, up 34 percent from 1964. The disappearance of feed grains is expected to increase during the 1965-66 year and may reach 157 million tons, McHaney says.

Owl Basketball Year In Review

This year in basketball has been a good year for Hondo. It has been highlighted by winning three trophies out of three tournaments played. A consolation trophy was brought home from the Medina Valley Tournament. A first place trophy was won in the Dilley Tournament. And another consolation trophy was snared in the Devine Tourna-

Another highlight was Devine's defeat at the hands of Hondo. We should have cinched a co-championship of the district with Devine, but we let down in a two-point loss to Cotulla.

An improvement which should improve our future basketball teams was the advent of a freshman team.

SPOTLIGHT A momentary spotlight should be placed on Mooney for scoring more points in one season than any other Hondo player has ever done; on Coach Lusk for his fine coaching and for his efforts to improve Hondo's program of basketball; on Coach Dillion for his fine forts with the B team; and on Coach McCarty for his patient and unrewarded coaching of the freshman team.

TEAM EFFORT

We have had fine coaching this year, but basketball is a team effort. These men need the wholehearted assistance of the players and the cooperation of the whole town to achieve success. Whether this year was a lucky freak with a strong Hondo team and poor opponents and lots of bucky breaks, or a sign of a change in Hondo's brand of basketball is a question which remains to be answered. We hope the answer is a long needed change in our basketball, and needless to say the teams of the future have our best wishes.

Conference On Libraries

ample of a self-enducated man who read by firelight, would have trouble in 28 Texas counties today. His trouble wouldn't be with the light; it would be finding books.

Twenty-eight counties have no public libraries, and their residents are among almost a million Texans whose public library is so close to being nonexistent (one day a week operation in some instances) that they would have to be listed as virtually without public library service.

While the rest of the nation spends $1.50 per person on libraries, Texas spends 84 cents per person. And even that national average figure is nothing to brag about. The number one professional association for libraries, the American Library Association, says it ought to be $3.50 to $4.00.

Seven million Texans have library service below the national average and only about one and one-half million can claim access to a public library which spends $1.50 annually per person.

Librarians have been at the bottom of the priority list for public expenditures for years. When City Councils and County Commissioners courts, which provide money for public library support, consider their budgets, they usually give the library anything that is left — if any-

One of these policy makers is reputed to have told a librarian making a budget plea, "I got where I am without reading a lot of books, and I'm not going to vote to put a lot of money in the

Another policy-maker -- the numer one man in the state - Governor John Connally, has a different attitude.

Keenly concerned about the necessity to upgrade library service to a level closer to that which education has achieved under his leadership, he has called a one-day statewide Conference on libraries, March 23, in Austin.

State oficials and civic leaders will attend by invitation to examine the embarrassing status of Texas libraries and seek methods for improvement. Elementary and secondary school libraries, college and university and special libraries will also be evaluated

It is hoped the Conference will give impetus to a new movement in Texas for improved library service with results that would make it impossible for that famed self-educated man, Lincoln, to apply one of his famed descriptive phrases to Texas library service — 'as thin as the homoeopathic soup that was made by boiling the shadow of a pigeon that had been starved to death'

BEAUTIFYING AMERICA

As one of America's first conservationists, George Wasington is as well known for the trees associated with him, as he is for the places where he is reputed to have slept. Two pecan trees given to Washington by Thomas Jefferson in 1775 are said to be the oldest trees now standing on the Mount Vernon Estate.

Many of the original plantings have perished from the rigors of nature and neglect. Today the grounds have been completely landscaped using Washington's writings as a guide.

On this 234th anniversary of his birth, it is fitting to recall his love of beautifying the landscape.

Even when steeped in the exigencies of the Convention meetings in Philadelphia, Washington took time to write ... Endeavor fo keep the Willow in the Serpentine Walk upright by means of stakes, and tow yarn or grass or something else to tye them thereto that will not rub, or fret the bark . . . and have you thinned the carrots, which were too thick? . . . What have you done to the Gravel walks?'

While many were cutting down trees indiscriminately, he cut trees only in the woodland reserved for his timber supply and fuel. At the same time he kept on planting and transplanting trees for landscaping and timber. His interest in beautifying the estate was so great that he asked for progress reports while fighting the revolutionary war.

George Washington, conservationist and forester, utilized trees in many ways —to help construct an embryonic nation -to provide fuel and to enhance the landscape, so that today Mount Vernon stands in living testimony to the harmonious relationship of man to the asute use

The last school week, even though it was a short one, was pretty full. At a senior class meeting Thursday morning the seniors chose their song and their motto. "You'll Never Walk Alone" was the song they felt most appropriately represented them, and "To the valiant heart, naught is impossible" is their motto. The class flower and colors will be chosen at a later date.

One of the biggest events of last week and one of the most important events of the entire year took place Thursday afternoon. Jackets were given to those who lettered in football and to the band seniors. The football jackets look mighty impressive with that district patch on the sleeve, and the band still has a chance to get a sweepstakes patch on theirs. It wasn't just football players and band seniors who got jackets. There were a few others who were lucky enough to receive one. Then there is Dianna Haby, (she has two) her band jacket and also her sweetheart jacket. Guess which one she's been wearing! Friday night the basketball team succeeded in downing Cotulla in their second meeting. The Owls finish the season Tuesday night with their last regular game.

-PS-Now that basketball is almost over, it's time for baseball to begin and practices started Monday after school. The first signs of spring. _PS_

Saturday night was the jointly sponsored FHA-FFA party at the high school. It had some competition from the dance at Castroville featuring Rob London and the Rogues who were quite good. Everyone attending both dances seemed to have lots of fun.

This week is also going to be a rather exciting one. Especially about 8:30 Friday morning when the cheerleader tryouts will occur. This year's tryouts are going to be especially ineresting since this past year all four of the cheerleaders were seniors and four new girls must be chosen. From Friday mornthree hundred people and do a

-PS-Tuesday afternoon the seniors had tryouts for their play and since this is Monday I do not know just who gets what part, so check here next week Just wanted to start advertising for it now. Keep the last weekend in March open as it should be worth your time to come to the gym to see this play, "Butter on your Bacon."

Friday Mr. Graw, the band director, made a trip to Dallas to attend a workshop for music educators. While there he heard the state band and chorus which was held in conjunction with this workshop.

The senior class is honored to have two celebrities in it. They are Madelyn Saathoff and Linda Santos who were both candidates for the Queen at the CYO Green and White Ball which was held last Friday night in San Antonio. Of the 35 candidates for queen, Madelyn was chosen as one of the six Maids to the Queen, and Linda as one of the sixteen duchesses. This is quite an event and it is an honor to be a part of the pageantry. Bill Shiffers was Madelyn's escort.

A number of the girls in the new family - living class decided Monday that being a secret service agent had its good points. It seems that they had an agent come to talk to them and he wasn't just any agent, but a very good looking agent. As Judy Schuehle put it, "I didn't know there was anything that good looking still walking on this earth!" So there will be a lot of girls volunteering for this secret work.

Glenn Garrison and Myron Saathoff were two Hondo boys who participated in the calf scramble at the San Antonio Stock Show. Not sure how they made out, but hope they got their calf.

-PS-Monday night the FFA and the FHA had their regular meetings. At the FHA meeting Kathy Mooney was elected Homemaker of the month for chapter II and Bonnie Mangold was chosen for Chapter I. The Ag boys then joined the girls and presented a display of their skills in parliamentary proce-

Also present and taking part in the program were Joe Moore, Jr., Director of the Texas Water Development Board, and Harvey Banks of California, oce of the members of the Governor's Advisory Panel for the State Water Plan.

Many important facts about Texas water were presented to us by the various speakers. Some of these facts are: There are over five million acres under irrigation in the High Plains

There is more than one hundred times as much water stored in underground formations in Texas as there is in all the surface lakes and reservoirs of the

A High Plains irrigated acre produces $20 in extra net profit to the farmer as primary benefits, but it also produces secondary and tertiary benefits to the local and national economy which raise the total benefits to

With proper treatment, sewage effluent can be used to grow crops, water lawns and golf courses. It has many other uses and has no offensive odor or other objectionable qualities.

These are a few of the things which impressed me most, but the one which really seems important is knowing that hundreds of people are studying and discussing our water problems in the State and seeking possible solutions to these prob-

Then, there is the fact that those people on the High Plains are pumping water from an enormous underground water supply, but it is a supply which is slowly but surely being exhausted, since that formation does not recharge.

We have our troubles in this area, but at least we know that our underground water supply can be replenished.

"Trailriding is fun," about 3,- over high blue hills and wind-000 weary riders will tell you. Certainly it is a movement that is estehing on. What makes people leave comfortable homes in mid-winter to ride a horse a hundred or more miles in all kinds of weather? That would be hard to say. They must enjoy horseback riging; but a trailride is much more than this. It is families, big, little, old and young, cooperating together in a joint venture. The goal of all eight groups who converged at the Coliseum was to ride there from their starting point in time to open the annual San Antonio Livestock Show and Rodeo, February 11,

The Medina County Trailriders with Edith Walton as president, merged with the Reinbeaux Riding Club of San Antonio to form the Hill Country Trailride. (The merger was for this ride only) Next to the oldest club and although this was their first year, Hill Country had the largest group of riders to sign up and stay with it all the way. There were more than 270 signers. They started from Stonewall, near the LBJ Ranch February 4, and rode through bitter cold, warm sunshine, dull mist, rain and even hail.

They camped at Fredericksburg, Comfort, Boerne, Bulverde, Castle Hills in San Antonio and the Joe Freeman Coliseum.

Bill Hall of San Antonio was trailboss and Hugh Mathews of Converse assisted. Organizing hundreds of riders with horses and equipment so that everything was orderly and enjoyable carried quite a responsibility. However, they did not work alone. Other helpers from San Antonio with a special chore were Allin Mahula and Sonny Perales, chief scouts. Ed Comer was advance party chief, Bill Nowotny was Marshal. Other scouts from the city were Dicky Diesenbach, Tex Boles, and Leonard Ripps. The chief cook from San Antonio was Pat Tarr. Scouts from Castroville included Babe Gillum, Rodney and Temple Mangold and Louis Rihn. Arlene Comer of San Antonio had a most important job as secretary.

Everyone carried out their duties in orderly manner with no accidents. The food, cooked in two iron pots over a camp fire, always tasted like "let's have some more". Every camp had to be left as clean as we found it.

At 6 o'clock every morning the horn in the sound truck would blow and the wagonmaster's voice over the loud speaker would order us all to get up and feed our horses. Lights would come on in the hundred or more camper trailers, and people of all ages seemed happy to do their chores. A catering service would have hot coffee and snacks available. By 8:30, or earlier, the riders would be mounted and ready to go. Some trailers pulled out ahead of the horses, others stayed until riders could come back and drive them to the next camp. After the night meal there was usually a free dance for those who cared to go. One night there was just a weenie roast and coffee and people talked around the fire and bragged on their horses.

There was a heavy overcast and light mist as the groups rode out of the park from Comfort. A police car led, next were three scouts and the sound truck playing western music. In places the riders rode 8 abreast, in others, single file. Traveling

And that's removable.

When Susanne finally took her into the guest bathroom Thursday evening at bedtime and ran the comb through water and then Michele's hair, she beamed approval at her mother and said, 'Now. Charles Ney, who is working in Izmir, Turkey wrote his mother, Mrs. Dora Ney, that he read in a recent copy of the Stars and Stripes, an Air Force publication, about Hondo being one of the fourteen post offices in the Nation to receive an award on beautification. > The Hondo FFA chapter wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to all of the people of the Hondo area who have helped the local FFA chapter this past year. There are a number of FFA activities that must have the full support of the people in the area to function properly. The grand support given both the FFA and the 4-H Club in the recent Medina County Stock Show is evidence of community interest in youth.

BANQUET IN MARCH

The Hondo FFA Chapter held a regular meeting Monday night to discuss several business items. The group voted to hold the annual FFA Parent & Son Banquet in the month of March. A committee was assigned to check the school calendar to find an open date. Last year the first open date was in April. The last two months of each school year are usually filled with class activities, baseball games and District FFA Banquets and other committee meetings.

Certain trade journals and periodicals serve only a limited audience. These publications know what type of person their product goes to and what type of advertisements will appeal to them. Thus, we see magazires such as Forbes for big business management and Editor and Publisher for journal-

Mississippi, for example, was 46th among the 50 states in the rate of population growth (6.2 percent), but 8th in weekday circulation growth of its daily newspapers (40.3 percent). The state also led the nation in the rate of per capita circulation growth (32.1 percent).

Local retailers don't overlook the obvious. They find that their local newspaper is the best medium for reaching prospective customers-and at the lowest cost because the waste circula-
